Quote of the month:

"The hardest thing in the world to do is to assume the mood of a warrior. It is of no use to be sad and complain and feel justified in doing so, believing that some is always doing something to us. Nobody is doing anything to anybody, much less to a warrior."

- Carlos Castaneda, Journey to Ixtlan

Magical Tip:

"To destroy an undesirable rate of mental vibration, put into operation the Principle of Polarity and concentrate upon the opposite pole to that which you desire to suppress. Kill out the undesirable by changing its polarity."

- The Kybalion: A Collection of Aphorisms Attributed to Hermes Trismegistus

"I have consulted with Diane to learn about different aspects of energy. She has been a rare find. She has ethics in everything she does. Each class or session with her was concise. Diane made sure she covered what she felt I needed and asked me questions to see if I understood. She is a sweet lady with a heart and very knowledgeable. I encourage people to use her as a resource in whatever she chooses to teach as she knows the material well and her prices are very reasonable.

"Diane, thank you for your time and your training. I must say that I was very impressed with your knowledge and ethics...you are great at what you do! I appreciate your time and I am so glad I did this with you. I feel like I know so much more now."

Gemstone of the Month: Green Aventurine

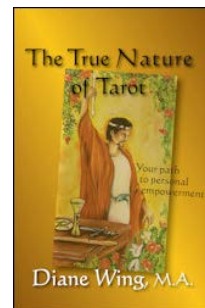

Green Aventurine is a stone of optimism and zest for life. It helps one move forward with confidence into new situations such as changes in employment, residence, school and relationships. Green Aventurine can be a stone of good luck and is recommended for those who wish to manifest greater prosperity.

The stone can assist in dealing with the ups and downs of life and the willingness to release the attachments to past relationships or life situations and to embrace change, growth and renewal.

Green Aventurine helps heal and regulate the heart and circulatory systems. It stimulates cell repair, re-growth and general healing. It stimulates life force, increasing physical and vibrational vitality.

Forest Witch Commentary: Practicing Spirituality vs. Integrating Spirituality

Are you tired of floating along, struggling to function in the physical realm, trying to go with the flow, but not directing your path? I see countless people on the spiritual path, not wanting to function on the physical plane, preferring to stay in the realm of spirit. This gives them the appearance of not being grounded, not having anything of substance to offer. The wisdom they have gained through the study and practice of spirituality is not applied to everyday life.

The practice of spirituality tends to be separated from daily life, which creates a void as you move through your day. The key is to integrate what you learn by practicing spiritual concepts in every aspect of your life, no matter how mundane the task. For example, use your intuitive guidance at work or to sense the energies around the people you encounter.

Be aware of how you project yourself and what type of people or clients you attract to you as a result. Grounding yourself in a solid plan based in your higher purpose gives you the perfect balance to someone who prefers to walk-in spirit but is required to function in the physical. Aligning yourself with your higher self and ultimately the Divine Will requires knowing yourself and developing a will that can be applied to the physical realm tasks such as having healthy relationships and being successful in working and living in your True Calling. Having a great relationship with yourself and with the Divine translates into a great business and successful work in which you express your unique self in powerful ways.

Your caring for others, gifts, and intuitive abilities cannot be fully expressed without knowing truly who you are at a core level. Your True Calling is directly related to who you are. Your creative and business endeavors change and mature as you learn and grow. Your personal evolution is directly related to your spiritual growth. Whatever you are going through in your personal life and your level of spiritual understanding is projected outward into your relationships, your work, and your business. These are key indicators of where you are on the continuum of change and becoming.

Like the moon cycle, the universe requires us to change and to grow as we learn and experience new things. The law of infinite data dictates that there is always more to learn. The energies of Saturn call us to take responsibility for ourselves and what we manifest in our lives. It's sometimes difficult to see for ourselves where we are and what is best and at those times it requires an objective perspective, one that is unattached to where you are now but can see the potential for where you are meant to be.

When you separate your spirituality from the mundane, you may feel disconnected, feel like you don't belong, are uncertain about your core being or believe that your life is out of balance. You may be out of kilter, your professional life may be unfulfilled or you invest your time and energy in a toxic workplace or relationship, until you can integrate your spiritual practices into your daily life, it will be the same. Find pragmatic applications for your beliefs.

If you'd like help making spirituality real and applicable, and if you'd like to learn how to fully integrate your spiritual practice and increase your energetic awareness, check out the classes on <http://www.forestwitch.com/new/events.php> and the upcoming series of classes on energetic awareness at Cecil College this fall!

get a direct reply. Meeting new people is transformative. When you always hang out with the same people, unless they are incredibly dynamic, you run the risk of stagnation. You hear the same opinions, you get the same perspectives, and you don't open yourself to new information. When you encounter new people, you get different reflections of yourself so that the depth of who you are can be revealed. See how others react to you, listen to how others see the world, and seek to discover something new. Go to an event alone to increase your chances of talking to someone new. If you go with a friend, the likelihood of focusing on interactions with your friend is higher than talking to a new acquaintance. If you need the support of a familiar person, make sure you open yourself to speaking to someone you've never met. This past weekend I attended a conference alone for this very reason and met several new contacts who possess a depth of knowledge in certain areas of magick that allowed me to expand my understanding. They are also very nice people! I'm looking forward to staying in touch and possibly working together in the future. Look for opportunities to meet new people wherever you are and start growing from the experience.
